

THE U.S.A.

The American government never officially passed the Treaty of Versailles. This meant they were not part of the League of Nations. Between 1919 and 1941, America isolated herself and played little part in world affairs.

The Big Three recognised this was one of the reasons why the League of Nations failed. They were determined not to repeat this mistake. The U.S. was part of the United Nations from the start.

similarities between the two treaties. However, there were also some important differences.
